MISSING CHARLES NEWHOUSE. Letters Purporting to Be From Him Received by His Friends.

The relatives of Charles H. Newhouse, the young man who resided in Culpeper,

Va., and who so mysteriously disappeared from sight in Baltimore Christmas eve, have at intervals received communications purporting to be from the young man, which, while raising the hopes of his parents and friends, at the same time leaves them in doubt and distress. The last seen of young Newhouse was early Christmas day morning. It was shortly after 1 o'clock, it is said, that he was seen in company with several other young men, supposed at that time to be medical students. At the place visited by the young men Newhouse was apparently a stranger. A phase in the disappearance of the young man that caused a great deal of worry to both friends and parents alike was the fact that at the time he carried on his per-son a large sum of money. The last communication received which is supposed to be from the wanderer is dated Johannesburg, and the inference is that he Johannesburg, and the inference is that he is doing well, although vague hints of suffering and hardships undergone by him are conveyed. Among the weird and thrilling stories concerning young Newhouse and his wild adventures is one based upon information in a recent letter from him to his home people, which is to the effect that his hair, eight months ago as black and glossy as a raven's wing, is now snowy white. No one is able to explain this most remarkable change. Whether the young man has undergone physical hardships and privations in the dark continent or whether some sudden and awful fright is responsible no one can tell, and those who have heard it can offer no plausible explanation. Although he writes that he will soon Although he writes that he will soon come home there is an opinion prevalent among his acquaintances that he will never return to his native land. Newhouse preserves an unbroken silence as to the causes leading up to his quitting this country.

About the first of the year the police department of this city was notified to keep a close watch for any signs of the missing man, but its efforts were unavailing. It was thought as a result of an investiga-tion that Newhouse had not been in this city just prior to the time he was missed from his home.

Newhouse comes of a prominent Oid Dominion family. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and of the Elks.
